

MorQi

INVESTOR PITCH BIBLE · OCTOBER 2026

A game about becoming your highest self, in a world that forgot how to feel.

A mobile action adventure for the whole family. Children choose it for the hordes, the powers, the creatures and the story. Parents are glad they did, because it teaches the five elements, breathing, emotional resilience and the habits that carry people through hard things, and every purchase is one they won't regret.

PLAYABLE TODAY

Four levels you can play today

Choose a Keeper, enter your birthday to meet your spirit animal, and run into the Still. Each level is about three and a half minutes: announced waves that grow with time and with your level, ten elemental powers that evolve, a spirit animal that fights beside you with an ultimate you fire yourself, and a boss arena. Level 1 teaches with a few short tips; each level after it brings new creatures and simply plays. It runs in the browser on an iPhone or a computer.

Wildfire

Evolved fireballs leave the ground burning. The meadow grows back wherever the Keeper has freed it.

Guards

Golden Bell, Stone Ward and Tide Ring stack around the Keeper, always centred on them.

The ultimate

Tap your spirit animal when its ring fills and it lands one huge hit, a different move for each of the twelve animals. It keeps its level between runs, and at companion level 9, 24, 36 and 60 the ultimate evolves: a new name, a bigger shape and, at the top, its mythic spirit rising over the hit.

The Still Warden

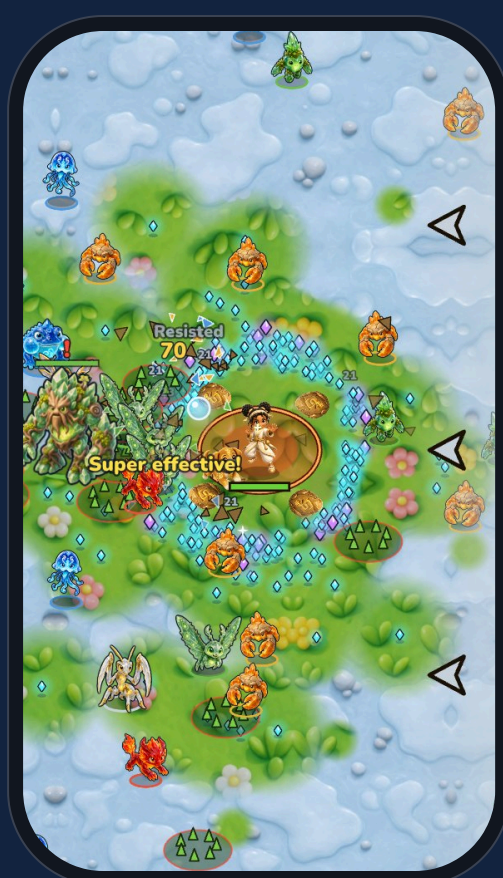

A crystal arena closes in. The Warden changes element as it weakens, and players learn which elements beat each one.

THE OPPORTUNITY

Families spend on games. They don't trust most of them.

$3B+

Player spending on the leading title in MorQi's core genre in under two and a half years.

~$20

Monthly spend of the average paying user on the largest kids' gaming platform.

$520M

The largest penalty yet against a game publisher over dark patterns and children's privacy.

The highest-earning games collect their money through random paid rewards, endless limited-time offers and competition that rewards whoever spends most. Parents distrust those mechanics, and regulators now penalise them. Wellbeing apps for children teach worthwhile skills, but children rarely ask to open them. Nobody has built a game children choose on their own that also leaves them better off. That gap is MorQi.

THE WORLD

The Stillness

Qi has stopped flowing. Rivers stand frozen mid-wave, fires have turned to glass, and people have stopped feeling. Nothing has died; everything has simply stopped. The player keeps the last hearth that still burns, and wins the world back one region at a time.

A world frozen mid-motion

The world is a mirror. The Stillness outside is what being stuck feels like inside, and every region a player brings back stands for a habit they've built.

The Stillmaker

Precise, composed, perfectly dressed, and never once raising his voice. A grieving former master who decided that feeling is what makes people hurt each other, and is stopping the world to keep it safe.

Year one

Cold silver eyes and a silent bell. Every season, players thaw one more piece of what he froze.

The end of his story

Over the seasons the crystal falls away and his features soften into balance. The villain children feared becomes the proof that anyone can come back.

You cannot keep people safe by making them stop feeling.

The idea under every chapter, and the reason the story works for a seven-year-old with a temper and for a forty-year-old who has never cried at work. It also carries a mystery planned from its first line and answered over the first year: why is the player's hearth the only one still burning?

Five peoples, one element and one emotion each

水

The Deep Tide

Water · fear → courage

Sailors and storytellers, too frightened to leave a frozen shore.

Courage is being afraid and moving anyway.

木

The Verdant Reach

Wood · anger → kindness

Healers and growers, furious at a world that let their forest go grey.

Anger tells you something matters.

火

The Ember Courts

Fire · performed joy → shared joy

Dancers who never stop celebrating, so they never have to feel what they lost.

Real joy is shared.

土

The Harvest Hold

Earth · worry → trust

The people who feed everyone and carry every worry but their own.

You can care without carrying everything.

金

The Silver Peaks

Metal · grief → letting go

Smiths and scholars who can't put down what they've lost. The Stillness began here.

Letting go isn't losing.

A master, a fox spirit, and five companions

Sorin

A master of qi, tai chi and feelings, earned through hard choices and living with what each one brought. He teaches one thing: keep striving to be the best version of yourself, all the way to your highest self.

Luma

The fox spirit who guards the last hearth. She grows a tail each season, and each tail returns a memory that unlocks the story's mystery.

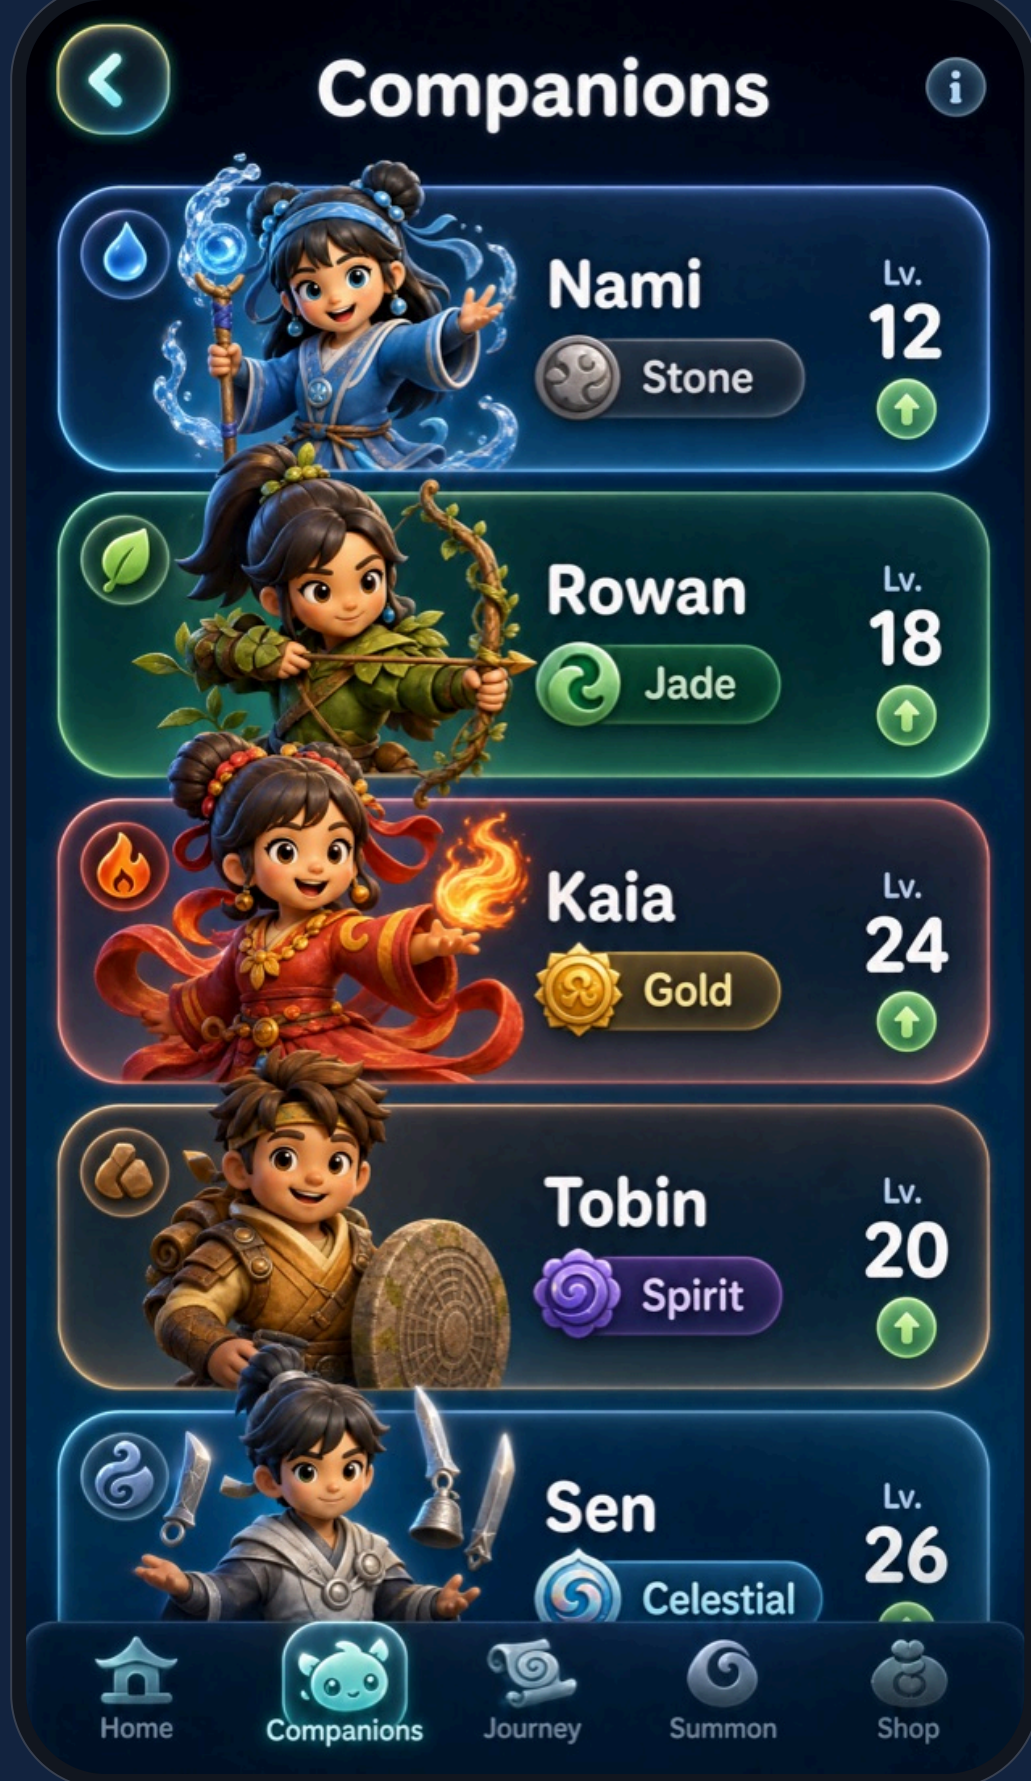

Bond stories

Every companion has a personal story. Choices are remembered, and only the companions whose stories you walked stand with you in a season's finale.

KEEPERS

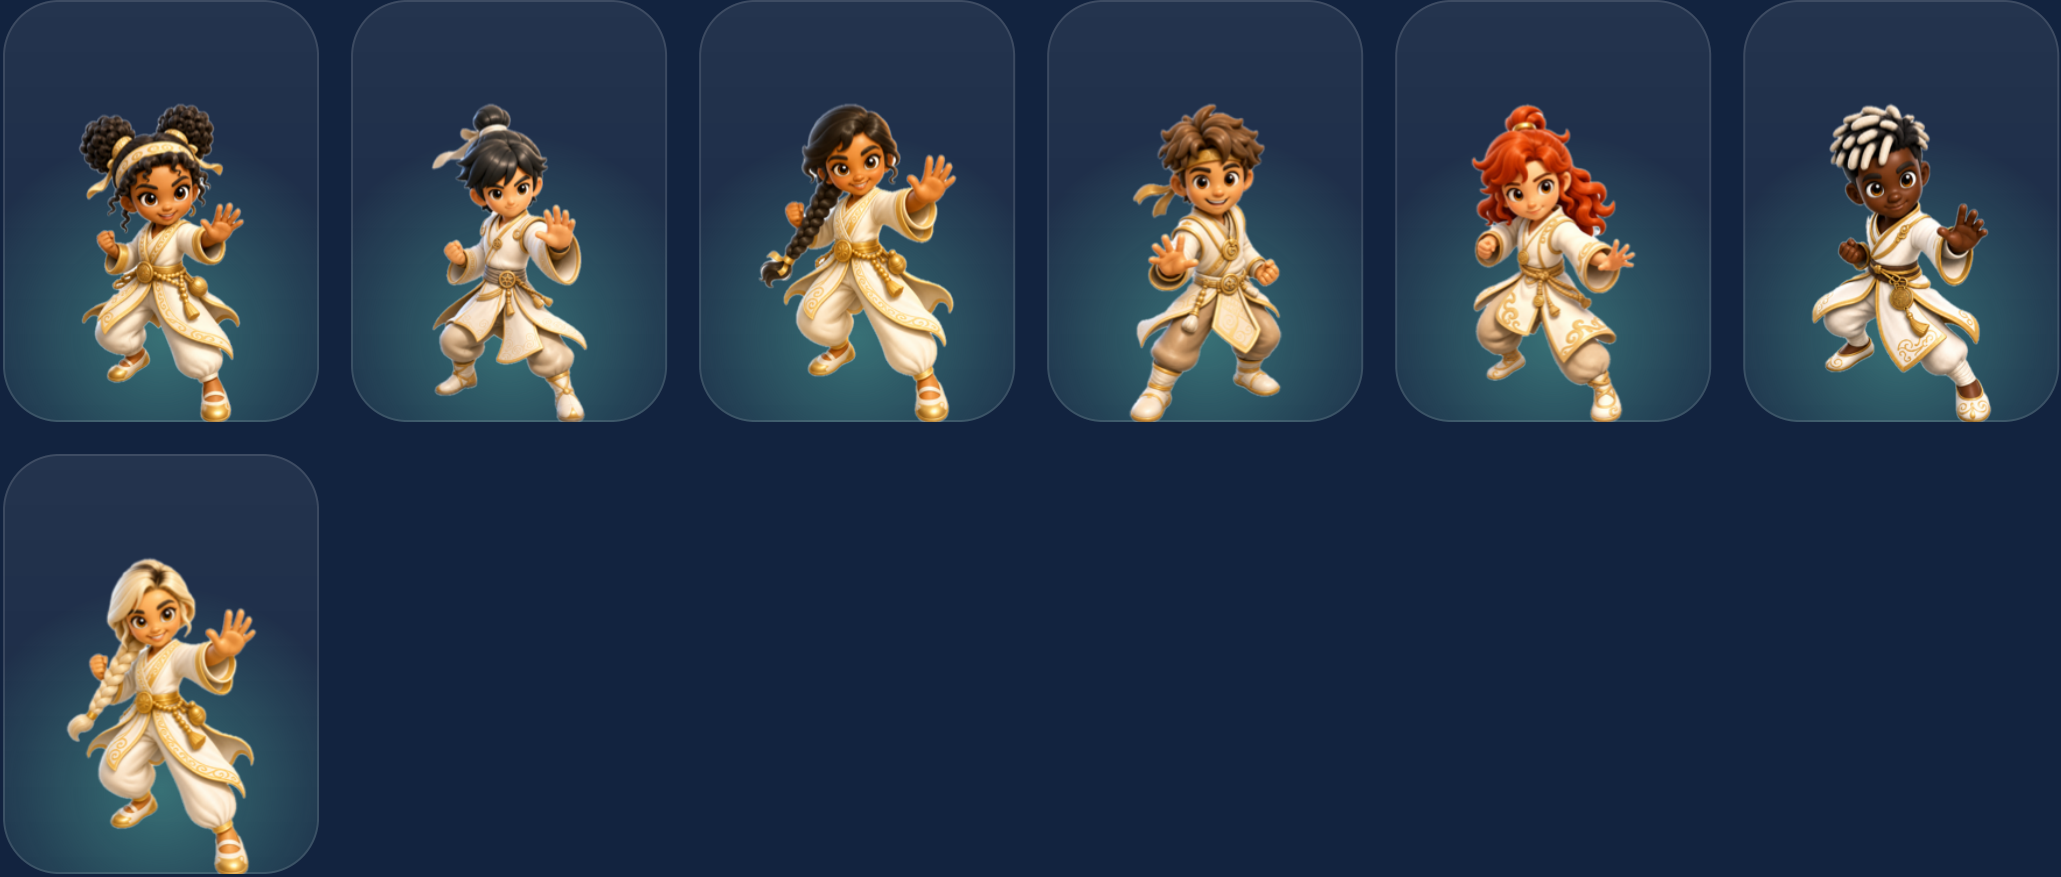

Every player is a Keeper, and every Keeper looks like someone

The player is the hero of the run, with their own spirit animal at their side. Keepers come in every skin tone, hair type and look, so every child can see themselves, and a player who sees themselves keeps coming back. The trim on a Keeper's robe takes the colour of their birth element, and Season Path outfits build on it from there.

Companions

Met in the story, never won from a random draw. Ranks climb from Stone through Jade, Gold and Spirit to Celestial.

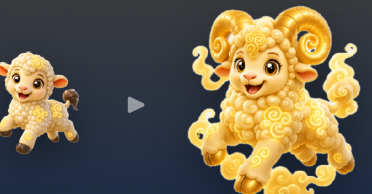

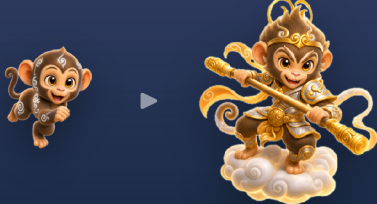

At launch: a simple creator for skin tone, hair and face. Later: a full wardrobe earned and collected through the seasons.

SPRIT ANIMALS

Twelve free, each growing from small to mythic

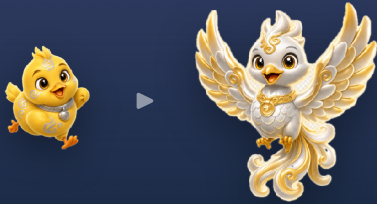

A player's birthday chooses one of the twelve zodiac animals, counted from Lunar New Year the way the Chinese calendar does, and that year's element becomes theirs: a child born in spring 2014 is a Wood Horse. The animal runs beside them in every fight, firing the year's element and its own nature at the creatures they beat, and its ultimate evolves four times as it levels, until its mythic spirit fights with it, in its element's colours. All twelve can be earned without paying.

Get the pack · $19.99

 Grown-ups only

Your birth animal

It fights beside you in every run, firing its element and pouncing, and its ultimate evolves as it levels up between runs.

The Spirit Grove

Where your animals live, play and grow.

Mythology packs

Beyond the twelve, creatures from the world's mythologies, Chinese first. Earned through long play or bought, behind a grown-up gate.

The first pack

Qilin, Black Tortoise, Baize, Pixiu, Kun-Peng and Jingwei. Legendary creatures carry two elements: more strengths, and weaknesses to match.

Ten powers, two for every element

Each element has a shooter and a guard or area power, and each one is a real thing on screen: orbs, pearls, vines, spears, fireballs, lanterns, boulders, a golden bagua, flying swords. Every level makes it visibly bigger. At three stars, paired with the gift of the element that feeds it, it evolves into something spectacular. The five-element creation cycle is the strategy, and players learn it by playing.

Tide Ring

GUARD

Water orbs circle you and splash everything they touch.

Moon Tide with Clear Lungs: Eight orbs, and a tidal wave rolls out from you.

Dragon Pearls

SHOOTER

Glowing pearls ricochet off every edge of the screen.

Pearl Storm with Clear Lungs: Four giant pearls that never fade and burst on every hit.

Vine Lash

AREA

Thorned vines whip out around you and crack.

Rising Grove with Deep Spring: Twelve vines, and sacred trees sprout to fight beside you.

Bamboo Spears

SHOOTER

Volley of spears fly the way you run.

Bamboo Storm with Deep Spring: Spears spiral out in every direction, nonstop.

Ember Darts

SHOOTER

Homing fireballs that explode in flame and smoke.

Wildfire with Green Shoot: Six fireballs whose blasts set the ground ablaze.

Lantern Bombs

Thrown red lanterns burst into pools of fire.

Lantern Festival with Green Shoot: A festival of lanterns that ends in fireworks.

Stone Ward

GUARD

Rune boulders orbit you and smash foes back.

Molten Ward with Kindling: Molten boulders that burn everything they touch.

Mountain Fist

A shadow grows, a boulder falls, the ground cracks.

Meteor Fall with Kindling: Flaming meteors that leave lava where they land.

Golden Bell

GUARD

A rotating golden bagua field hurts and slows all inside.

Mountain Bell with Rooted: A vast field that rings out in great golden waves.

Flying Swords

SHOOTER

Jian swords slice out through the crowd and fly home.

Ten Thousand Swords with Rooted: Swords rain from the sky around you.

The gifts that feed them

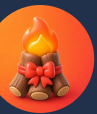

Deep Spring

Heal faster. Evolves the Wood powers.

Green Shoot

More qi and pickup range. Evolves the Fire powers.

Kindling

Every power hits harder. Evolves the Earth powers.

Rooted

Take less damage. Evolves the Metal powers.

Clear Lungs

Every power recharges faster. Evolves the Water powers.

Creatures carry elements too, shown by the coloured ring at their feet. Which power hits them hardest follows the element chart below.

CREATURES OF THE STILL

Fifteen creatures, met a few at a time

Every element sends three: a swarm creature, a specialist with a trick, and a brute. Each has its own look, its own way of fighting and a red warning on the ground before every attack, so a watchful child can always step clear. Level 1 brings only the simple ones; each later level adds one or two. Before a level, a card appears only for new creatures whose element beats the player's own.

Frost Jelly

Weaves side to side as it drifts in.

Water Swarm · Level 1

Beat it with Wood Earth

Spout Frog

Spits bubbles that slow you down.

Water Specialist · Level 2

Beat it with Wood Earth

Tide Turtle

Bronze Hornet

Zigzags fast and erratically.

Metal Swarm · Level 1

Beat it with Water Fire

Blade Mantis

Freezes, then dashes along a red line.

Metal Specialist · Level 3

Beat it with Water Fire

Bell Knight

Throws a fan of spinning blades.

Metal Brute · Level 4

Beat it with Water Fire

THE ELEMENT CHART

Every element beats two and is weak to two

The five elements, played like a card game everyone already understands. An element beats the one it keeps in check (water puts out fire) and the one that feeds it, which it uses up (fire burns wood). It does double damage to those two, very little to the two that beat it, and little to its own kind. A Keeper's own element comes from their birth year, so the same chart decides which creatures hit them hardest.

Water	Beats · puts out Fire, rusts Metal	Weak to · drunk up by Wood, dammed by Earth
Wood	Beats · breaks up Earth, drinks up Water	Weak to · burned by Fire, chopped by Metal
Fire	Beats · melts Metal, burns Wood	Weak to · put out by Water, smothered by Earth
Earth	Beats · dams Water, smothers Fire	Weak to · broken up by Wood, dug through by Metal
Metal	Beats · chops Wood, digs through Earth	Weak to · rusted by Water, melted by Fire

LEARNED BY PLAYING

The game says it out loud

Hits read “Super effective!” or “Resisted”. Every wave is announced with the elements that beat it, every power card shows what it beats, and the spirit animal aims at what its element beats first. By the end of Level 1 a seven-year-old picks powers by element without being told to.

THE PATH OF THE FIVE

Born one element, earning all five

A birth year gives every player two things, as in Chinese astrology: its animal becomes their spirit animal, and its last digit gives their own element. A child born in 2014 is a Wood Horse: a Wood Keeper with a Fire foal at their side. They start with their own element's powers and learn the others one at a time, in the order their element feeds them. Each new element beats the thing that threatens the one before it, so the lesson underneath is simple: what you nourish protects you.

Fire

Born Fire. Water and Earth are the threats.

Earth

Fire feeds Earth, and Earth dams Water.

Metal

Earth feeds Metal, and Metal digs through Earth.

Water

Metal feeds Water, and Water rusts Metal.

Wood

The element that feeds Fire: the circle closes.

EARNED WITH TIME

One element at a time

A new element arrives about once a season, through play and a Teaching with Sorin, so wielding all five takes about a year. A newly learned element is an apprentice: its powers reach three stars until the next one arrives. In the demo, each level adds one.

A FIGHTING CHANCE

Jade Wards

When a shore favours elements that beat yours, frozen lanterns lean towards protection: Jade Wards that halve the harm from those elements, and more healing. The boss arena drops one when the Warden turns to an element that beats you.

SIXTY KEEPERS

Five elements × twelve animals

Every Keeper and spirit animal pairing plays differently, and no two siblings need to start the same way.

Year digits: 0–1 Metal · 2–3 Water · 4–5 Wood · 6–7 Fire · 8–9 Earth.

EVERY SECOND REWARDS

Built for the feeling of one more run

Every hit flashes, squashes and knocks back. Every kill shatters into crystal and drops a gem, and the pickup chime climbs as you chain them. Level-ups arrive every twelve to fifteen seconds as a choice of three cards, and a power never comes back once it is maxed. The first brute on each shore guards a Spirit Chest that spins a roulette over your build, so a chest always feels earned. All of it is earned in play; none of it is sold.

HOW IT PLAYS

Fast action outside, a home that grows inside

Win a region in a run → free its people → grow your hearth → raise companions and animals →

take the next region

The run

Your Keeper and spirit animal against the Still. One thumb to move while powers fire on their own; hordes that grow with time and with your level; chests, boosters and an arena boss.

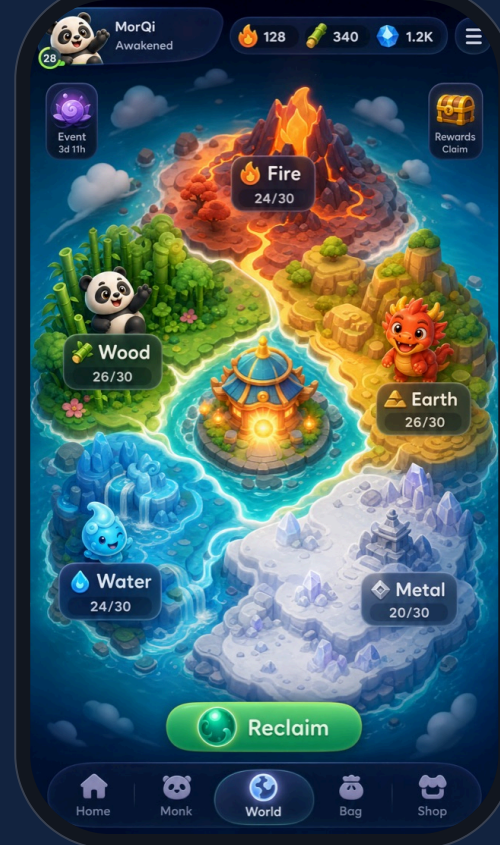

The Last Hearth

Home. Five halls around the fire, survivors with names and feelings, and a settlement that visibly grows.

Sorin's Teachings

Where breathing lives: short side missions of real qigong and breathing with Sorin, away from the action. Each one unlocks a permanent upgrade for the hearth.

The world map

Colour returns wherever you've won.

WALKED, THEN OPENED

Nothing opens until a player has been shown how

Every area unlocks at the end of a short guided mission where the player does it themselves, with a hand pointing and everything else dimmed. The first fifteen minutes cover the hearth, the spirit animal, the first survivors, the first run and the first hall.

WHAT IT TEACHES

The lessons are in the rules

No screen ever announces a moral. Every lesson is a rule the player runs into or a consequence they feel. Children absorb it. Parents notice the change.

WHAT THEY LEARN	WHERE IT LIVES IN THE GAME
Balance wins	Bosses change element as they weaken. The strongest builds use the whole cycle.
Every strength has a weakness	Each element beats two and is weak to two, so a player who leans on one element meets creatures that shrug it off. The best builds mix.
Everything feeds something	A power evolves only with the gift of the element that feeds it: Water feeds Wood, Wood feeds Fire, and on around the circle.
Breathe when it's all too much	Sorin's Teachings are real breathing and qigong, a few minutes at a time, and they make the hearth stronger.
What you raise grows with you	The spirit animal grows only through play and care, and its evolutions come from that bond, never from a purchase.
Risk has a price	In Hearth Trials each player chooses how much to risk. Nobody tells them the right number.
Honour is what you do when you could get away with less	Picking on smaller players is allowed, pays less, and lowers an Honour score everyone can see.
Losing is information	After a loss: time to rebuild, a companion's story of their own defeat, and a question about what you'd change.
Consistency beats intensity	Steady days compound. A missed day slows progress and never wipes it.
Everyone has a reason	Every creature you free shows the memory that froze it. The first boss is a fisherman who stopped feeling because he was afraid. Even the Stillmaker started from love.
Nobody builds alone	The biggest bosses fall only to families and friends together.

SEASONS

One story, a new chapter every season, free for everyone

Each season matches the real calendar and the element traditional Chinese medicine pairs with it, so the year turns through the five elements in order. Every season tells one people's story, brings its own reward track, and gives lapsed players a reason to come back.

Winter

Water · launch season

The Frozen Sea.

Spring

The Season Path

50 tiers, free and premium. Outfits and styles, in-game currency, home and animal looks, and each season's exclusive spirit animal and hero. It expires with the season, and $0.99 buys an unfinished Path all the time it needs.

Kin events

Family and friends bring down a colossal Still Titan together, each Keeper with their own mythic spirit animal. Nobody loses anything.

Hearth Trials

Optional raids where each player chooses their stake, from nothing to half their spare resources. Nothing a player has raised can ever be lost.

WHY WE WIN

Four advantages that reinforce each other

TEACHING THROUGH RULES

Lessons nobody announces

The five-element cycles are the strategy, and life skills are the consequences. Learning is never a lecture, so children keep playing.

THE FEEL OF THE GENRE'S BEST

Polish players already love

Hordes, evolving powers, chests and boosters with real effects and sound, proven in a playable level today, in a world and art style of our own.

A STORY BUILT TO LAST

Serialised by season

One free, continuing story on the real calendar with a mystery planned from the first line. Every season is a reason to come back.

TRUST AS A MOAT

The fair model is the compliant one

Built for where regulation is going rather than where the genre has been. Parents can see and control everything they pay for.

WHAT PLAYERS DISLIKE IN TODAY'S TOP GAMES	MORQI
Random paid rewards with long odds	Every purchase is direct, priced in dollars. Chests are earned, never bought.
Big spenders wiping out months of a player's progress	Players choose their own risk; nothing they raised can be lost.
New characters that make old ones obsolete every few months	Companions and animals never go obsolete.
Pop-up offers and status tiers bought with lifetime spend	One shop page, fixed prices, a grown-up gate.
Timers and energy you pay to skip	No paid speed-ups, no paid energy.
Open chat full of strangers	No open chat for under-13s; family groups and kind preset messages.

TRUST AND GO TO MARKET

Built for the parent who pays

TRUST AND SAFETY

A grown-up gate on every purchase and a monthly spending summary for parents. No open chat for under-13s. Parent controls, including the most a child can risk in Hearth Trials. No third-party advertising. Data practices designed for US children's privacy law (COPPA). Parent-owned accounts, deleted in one step.

GO TO MARKET

A family game for all ages with a neutral age check, since advertising aimed at children is tightly restricted and the parent is the one who pays. Paid acquisition aimed at parents and adults. Qigong, tai chi, wellness and parenting communities as channels. Each season's chapter as its own moment to bring players back.

ROADMAP

From a playable level to the first season

The design is complete: world, characters, core loop, ten powers, economy and pricing. The breathing and five-element systems were proven in an earlier prototype built over more than a hundred versions, and four playable levels of the new game are live today.

Done: the design and four playable levels

World, story, characters, ten powers, fifteen creatures, economy and pricing, plus four browser levels anyone can play today.

Months 1–2: native iPhone build

Level 1 rebuilt as a native iPhone game, with the core run, powers, chests and spirit animal.

Months 3–4: the loop around the run

A light home base, spirit animal growth, three regions of the winter season and a first Season Path.

Months 5–6: families, then a soft launch

TestFlight with about 100 families, then a small soft launch in one or two markets. Targets: day-1 retention of 35–50%, day-7 of 15–25%, day-30 of 5–15%.

Then: the seed round and the seasonal rhythm

With real retention data, a seed round builds the full team, five seasons a year, mythology packs, Kin events and Android.

THE RAISE

$60K to put MorQi on iPhone

A small pre-seed round, up to $100K, to turn the playable Level 1 into a native iPhone game, test it with real families, and come back with the retention data a seed round needs. The three founders work without salary, so every dollar goes into building and testing the game.

$60K

Target pre-seed. About six months to a soft launch.

$100K

The most we would take. Nine months, and a bigger test.

6 mo.

From this round to retention data from real families.

USE OF FUNDS AT $60K	AMOUNT
Native iPhone build: a contract game developer for about five months	$30,000
Art, animation and effects: our AI-assisted pipeline plus a contract artist for clean-up	$9,000
Legal: company setup, IP assignment from all three founders, children's privacy (COPPA) and App Store family rules	$6,000
Soft-launch test marketing in one or two markets	$6,000
Music and sound	$3,000
Tools: Apple developer account, cloud and art-generation credits	$3,000
Contingency, about 5%	$3,000
Total	$60,000

AT $100K

More runway, stronger data

Nine months instead of six, a second developer part-time, two more regions, and a soft-launch test with about $15K of acquisition, so the retention numbers hold up in front of seed investors.

WHAT IT PROVES

Families come back

Day-1, day-7 and day-30 retention from a native game in real hands, how much of each session goes to the breathing Teachings, and whether parents buy the Season Path.

WHAT COMES NEXT

The seed round

With that data, a seed round builds the full studio and the seasonal rhythm. We estimate $1.75M to $4.0M, depending on how far the numbers let us go.
